They enrich the soil they cultivate instead of wearing it out, work with never-failing pluck and patience, keep out of debt, and are the sturdy friends of common schools, law and order. If five millions of Germans could be distributed through the South, the advantage to our section would be incalculable, for their characteristics are exactly those which the Southern people do not possess, and would profit by,"

The Hallroad Meeting To-Day

The steamer Andes yesterday brought several delegates to the railroad meeting at the McLure House to-day, among them Hon. J. H. Rlley and Dr. J. H. Wetzel, of Jackson county, and Cols. Byrne and Buttrick of Kanawha. These gentlemen speak of a very decided interest among their people in the proposed line between this city, Parkersburg and Charleston, and express no doubt whatever of raising the money among! themselves necessary for the survey and right of way through their counties. There are two competing routes from Parkersburg to Charlestonin fact three-one through Rosne county, one via Ravenswood, in Jackson, and one (more direct) through the centre of Jackson county via Ripley. Ripley proposes to be a point on either of the Jackson routes. The rivalry between these routes assures a cheap right of way through the county; as it is quite probable that most of the land will be donated.

Parkersburg appointed a number of delegates at a meeting there Saturday night tho will reach here this morning by rail. Mr. W. N. Chancellor and Col. W. P. Thompson are among them. Hon. J. N. Camden is expected here this morning from Washington.

We have no tidings as to what has been done in Marchall, Wetzel, Tyler or Pleasants, but we pres de that some parties from these counties will put in an appearance at the meeting to-day.

This is the most important railroad meeting held here for a long time, and we trust that a good representation of our substantial citizens will be on hand to speak for Wheeling and Ohio county today. The hour for the meeting is one o'clock, at Veteran Hall, McLure Honse.

MONOPOLY UPON MONOPOLY. The Disphosphorization of Iron—The Heasemer Association Gobbles the Basic Process. Pittsburgh Dispatch of yesterday.

In Saturday morning's issue was printed a statement of the fact that the Bessemer Steel Association had become possessed by purchase of the exclusive American rights to the celebrated Thomas-Gilchrist basic process for the dephosphorization of iron. Since that publication more facts connected with the important transaction have been made public. The figures involved in this important transaction are volved in this important transaction are placed all the way from $275,000 to $400,000, but parties who have facilities for knowing something of the matter say that the lesser figure is the correct one. The ne_otiations which have thus been consummated have been in progress for a considerable period, and were concluded between a representative of the Association and Mr. Thomas personally, although the latter has a representative in the United States.

THE IMPORTANT STREEM.

By this transaction the whole of the patents covering the basic process, comprising those issued in the name of Mesars, Thomas, Riley and Snelus, become Mesars. Thomas, Riley and Saelus, become the property of the Bessener Association. The success of the system has been established by operations both on the Continent and in Great Britain, and the English manufacturers have been looking to it as a lever with which they expected to regain the ground they have lost of late years, and become again the virtual controllers of the iron and steel trade of the world. The process is second in importance and value only to the Bessenber, as by it ores containing phosphorus, which by it ores containing phosphorus, which otherwise would be valueless can be utilized and made to produce any desired quantity of steel or iron at a small cost. It is also more rapid and considerably cheaper than the old method.

WILL THEY MAKE USE OF IT? o put its purchases to practical use is a trade outside of the concern are not allowed to fathom. Mr. Fenton, the President of the Association, is confined to his residence by illness, and Mr. Kennedy, its Secretary, intimated his inability to impart any information beyond the fact that the purchase had actually been consummated. The Bessemer process is now exclusively monopolized by 11 firms. The works, which have a capacity of over 1,000,000 tons per annum, are fully employed, and orders are booked for a year shead. The object of the Association in securing the basic process can, therefore, be readily seen. Once in the hands of other parties the Bessemer people would no longer have a monopoly; prices would be forced down, and, more than this, the value of the plant now engaged in steel manufacture would be greatly depreciated. In short, operated by independent parties, the invention would work rade outside of the concern are not allowed

WILL IT PLEASE OUTSIDERS. This purchase is no doubt a great thing for the company, and highly gratifying to its stockholders, whose stock is now worth its stockholders, whose stock is now worth 250 above its par value; but whether it will be as gratifying to the buyers of from and steel rails, and of fron and steel generally, is a question. Had Mr. Thomas, the patentee, negotiated for the sale of rights to individual works, giving all manufacturers an equal chance, it would have been a wiser policy, productive of more satisfactory results to him personally, and would have enables the public to profit. that he voted for the Republican sppor- would have enabled the public to profit tionment bill in the House at the late sest by it.
